Article Gives More Information On Hicks Dome

MORE ABOUT URANIUM: Harry Porter, publisher of the Harris County Independent at Elizabethton, Tenn., this week carried a story about the prospecting of Hicks Dome and he brings out some interesting, although perhaps dampening, information.

His story said that abnormal radioactivity was found in the upper part of the breccia zone encountered in an oil test drilled on the apex of Hicks Dome in 1952 by the St. Joseph Lead Co., and the information was released in a paper entitled "Explosion Pipe in Test Hole on Hicks Dome, Hardin County, Illinois," in the December issue of "Economic Geology," written by John S. Brown, J. A. Emory and P. H. Meyer Jr.

This paper states: "The information given herein has been released through the courtesy of the St. Joseph Lead Co. in the belief that it is of more than scientific interest, even though it seems to have no immediate practical value."

Porter declares that after describing the dome and theorizing how it was formed by a volcanic explosion, caused by steam, the paper takes up the subject of radioactivity.

"Because of the peculiar nature of the breccia (caused in the pipe by the explosion) encountered in the lower half of the hole, the cuttings were tested for possible radioactivity under the supervision of James W. Hill, a visiting U. S. Geological Survey representative. The test showed two to four times normal background count in several sections (radioactivity). Samples from representative sections were submitted later to the Denver laboratory for analysis under auspices of the Atomic Energy commission."

"The amount of radioactivity in four of the samples is significant, but the lack of uranium revealed by the chemical analyses indicates that radium, thorium or some other elements are the cause of the radioactivity."

Porter says one of the samples showed .024 per cent. uranium; others .001 per cent. The federal government will not purchase any ore containing less than 2 per cent. uranium oxide and added that the Denver laboratory, according to the paper, in a final report on the samples stated "the moderate radioactivity of the sample is caused largely by thorium."

Hull to Retire As Commander In the Far East

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. John E. Hull, U. S. Far East commander, will retire on April 30 after more than 37 years of military service, it was announced today.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of U. S. Army forces in the Far East and a wartime 8th Army commander in Korea, was the most mentioned prospect to succeed Hull. Taylor arrived here unannounced this week for conferences and has avoided reporters. He returns to Japan shortly.

The Army, in announcing Hull's retirement date and plans to return to the United States in early April, said no successor has been named. Hull will shed his four-star Army uniform 26 days short of his 60th birthday anniversary. As America's top military man in the Far East, he has a dual command. He is chief of all U. S. Army, Navy and Air Forces and is head of the United Nations Command which was set up early in the Korean war. His area embraces Japan, Korea and Okinawa.

No limelight seeker in his long career, Hull is a decorated combat veteran of World War I and a top staff officer of World War II. He directed the Eniwetok atom bomb tests in 1948. He was Army vice chief of staff before taking over the Far East commands from Gen. Mark Clark, retired, in Oct. 1953.

3 Vienna Business Places Burglarized

Officers are investigating three break-ins at Vienna Thursday night in which three business places were burglarized.

Farris Motors reports $600 was taken from a safe which was rolled from the office into the workshop and where the burglars used the shop tools to open the safe.

John's Implements was entered, but the safe contained no money and was unlocked.

Lindsey Motor Sales was entered and a 900-pound safe was hauled away. It contained about $400 in cash and firm records.

Barter is Low Bidder on Paving Project

Bids $811,249
For Approach to Ohio River Bridge

The J. D. Barter Construction Co. of Harrisburg was low bidder on the paving project in connection with the Illinois approach to the Ohio river bridge at Shawneetown, it was revealed today.

The Barter bid of $811,249.54 is for 2.45 miles of 22-foot wide concrete pavement from near Shawneetown southeasterly to the new bridge.

Bids were opened yesterday at Springfield by the Department of Public Works and Buildings, Division of Highways, State of Illinois.

On the Shawneetown paving project the S. J. Groves and Sons Co., which paved the Mitchellville-to-Dixon Springs highway, was second low bidder with a figure of $819,297.47. R. E. Potashnick of Cape Girardeau was third with $866,525.04 and the Leon B. Stille Construction Co. was fourth with $958,046.79.

On the same project there were bids received for bridge construction and the Howell Engineering Co., Carbondale, was low with a bid of $134,322.72. This contract calls for a three-span continuous steel I-beam bridge three-fourths mile north of Shawneetown and a three-span continuous steel I-beam highway grade separation structure in Shawneetown. There were eight bids on this project ranging from Howell's low up to $150,891.10. Saline County Projects

These projects are "musts" in connection with the huge new bridge under construction at present. Plans are to have the bridge completed by November and presumably the approach work will be done by the time the bridge is finished.

R. W. Ford of Marion was low bidder on a bid Saline county project, the widening of two reinforced concrete deck girder bridges, three-span steel I-beam bridges and a steel I-beam superstructure between Carrier Mills and Stonefort. The Ford bid was $211,621.55. On the other bid, by Tri-State Engineering Co., Benton, was $212,375.81.

In connection with this project, Illinois Steel Bridge Co., Jacksonville, was low with a bid of $42,169.03 for furnishing, fabricating and delivery of structural steel and metal handrail for a three-span I-beam bridge and a steel I-beam superstructure one mile and one and one-half miles north of Stonefort. There were seven bidders.

Ike Checks With Mamie on Color To Paint Barn

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press White House Writer
GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—President Eisenhower is like any other man with a new house. He has to check with his wife on what color to paint the barn.

For nearly an hour on his Gettysburg farm Friday, the President worked with a painter to get just the right shade for the huge barn that sits not far from the new Eisenhower house.

The house is mostly white, and the old red barn would have been an eyesore without a new coat of paint. The President thought first of painting the barn white, too, but he decided the huge structure would dominate the house.

So, he had a painter, Carl Mauss of nearby York, Pa., mix white with a little green, blue and amber. They came up with a shade which looked like a pastel green in the late winter afternoon sun.

Checks With Mamie

The President was satisfied, but he told Mauss: "We'll have to ask Mrs. Ike. She'll have the final word, anyway." Like a dutiful husband and new householder, the President, his tan camel's hair topcoat flapping in the breeze, strode across a muddy field back to the house where Mrs. Eisenhower was deep in conference with Elisabeth Draper, the New York interior decorator.

Sounds of "ohs" and "ahs" filtered from the upstairs windows as the ladyfolks looked at curtain material and moved chairs around in an elaborate game of furniture arrangement.

The President and Mrs. Ike came to the window. He pointed toward the barn which by now resembled a nursery school exercise in finger painting. Painter Mauss had tried dabs of varying green shades all over one end of the barn, on top of white trim and on the old red finish itself.

The Right Mixture

There was some animated conversation in the upstairs window and the President reappeared in the yard a few minutes later.

"That's just right," he told Mauss.

The President drove here from Washington Friday and plans to return sometime late Sunday. The farm house is completely structurally and the first family is now engaged in decoration and placement of furnishings.

"When will it be ready?" a reporter asked the President. The ancient house has undergone extensive renovation for more than a year.

"Well, it is a matter of finishing touches now," the Chief Executive said. "We're getting down to the point where you find that the rugs don't fit and the furniture doesn't fit."

Report Urges Adjusted Coal Freight Rates

Committee Also Urges Limit on Foreign Oil Imports

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Cabinet level committee on fuel needs urged today that natural gas be freed of all federal control "prior to its entry into an interstate transmission line."

In so doing the committee took issue with a Supreme Court ruling of last June. That ruling for the first time gave the Federal Power Commission authority to regulate the price of gas from the well head to the consumer in interstate commerce.

But the fuel committee, created by President Eisenhower last July 30, said "We believe the federal government should not control the production, gather, processing, or sale of natural gas prior to its entry into an interstate transmission line."

This issue—whether the government has the right to regulate natural gas before it goes into interstate commerce—has been a subject of bitter controversy for years.

In a report issued at the White House the fuel committee also:

1. Urged a limit on foreign oil imports.
2. Recommended further study on relief for the distressed coal industry which has been losing customers to competing gas and oil fuels.

For the immediate relief of the coal industry, however, the committee suggested an adjustment of freight rates. It also proposed that the government try to get foreign governments to reduce unreasonable restrictions against imports of American-mined coal.

Mr. Eisenhower created the fuel advisory committee to review the nation's fuel needs and resources. It is headed by Defense Mobilizer Arthur S. Flemming and includes representatives of seven government departments.

The committee proposed that federal regulation of natural gas be limited to the interstate transmission of the fuel. But it did recommend, however, that the FPC consider in acting on pipeline petitions whether the well head price was arrived at competitively and represented a "reasonable market field price."

Within that framework, the committee said the commission also should consider protection for the consumer and the assurance of supply.

"The several states or their political subdivisions should continue to provide the public utility regulation of distributing companies in accordance with usual utility practices," the committee said. It urged regulation of production and conservation of natural gas by appropriate state agencies. Interstate transmission would be regulated by the Federal Power Commission and distribution by local public utility commissions.

Cut Corn Costs, Increase Yields With Fertilizer

CHICAGO — Costs of growing corn can be cut as much as 26 cents per bushel, yields per acre can be more than doubled and profits boosted nearly three and a half times by good farming practices, including the use of fertilizer.

That was the statement of the Middle West Soil Improvement committee, based on recent studies by University of Missouri soil specialists.

The Missouri studies showed that the production cost averaged 58 cents per bushel for corn on fertilized fields, compared to 84 cents on unfertilized fields.

Yields on fertilized fields averaged 80 bushels per acre, as against 35 bushels on unfertilized fields.

Net profit was $63.60 per acre for the fertilized corn compared to $19.75 for the unfertilized corn. Dr. G. B. Smith, University of Missouri agronomist, estimated that it cost $29.25 per acre to grow corn when no fertilizer was added. This fixed cost included seed, tillage, cultivation, harvesting and other items.

On fertilized fields the overall production cost averaged $46.40 per acre. This included a fixed cost of $51.50, plus a fertilized cost of $14.90 per acre. The fertilized application was based on recommendations from soil tests.

Figuring corn at $1.40 per bushel, the 80-bushel yield on the fertilized fields had a total value of $112.00 per acre. When overall production costs of $46.40 per acre were deducted, the net profit was $65.60 per acre. The crop from the unfertilized fields had a total value of $49.00 per acre, leaving a net of $19.75 after costs were deducted.

To Make Profit Start Chicks Now: SIU Poultryman

The farmer who wants a better chance to make ends meet from poultry in 1955 should be starting chicks for his laying flock now, says Scott Hinners, poultry specialist at Southern Illinois University. Profits are more likely for the farmer who has his new laying flock in full production by the time egg prices are best. In recent years the egg market usually has begun strengthening in late June or during July and the period from mid-August to mid-October has had relatively stable high prices for good quality eggs. It was low generally throughout 1954, but Hinners believes that the 1955 price outlook will be for prices comparing favorably with the more normal years of 1952 and 1953.

Competition and poultry improvement through breeding has had an important place in changing the egg production trend in the last generation. Farmers, therefore, are making an effort to start chicks earlier so that the new flocks will be in production when the egg market is higher.

A midwest study showed this trend, revealing that laying flocks started before April 1 returned 594 per hundred birds while those started after May actually cost the grower $8 per hundred for the fun of raising and keeping them.

Hinners says that for farmers to make good profits from laying flocks the chicken must be capable of averaging more than 200 eggs per bird housed. This means that the chickens must mature early, produce eggs persistently and intensely, and not tend toward broodiness or a prolonged pause. The flock owner needs to have over 65 percent production during the year if the birds are to average 200 eggs annually. Culling may assure the percentage easily, he says, but it is more profitable to improve the flock by breeding in order to reduce the number of hens removed during culling. Birds removed as culls cannot produce profits.

SIU Country Column

By Albert Meyer

Whatever the weather may be, some persons are pleased and some are not. While some want rain others prefer sunshine; some like warm days, others like cold weather. Usually, however, the conversation will terminate with some observation about weather being the earth where there is no common run of men can do little to change and that the best policy is just to take it as it comes.

Plants are sensitive to climate and have the disadvantage of not being able to seek shelter as do men and animals. However, there are few places on the surface of the earth where there is not found some kind of plant endowed with special characteristics that permit it to live and grow in that place.

Crop plants have been studied and classified according to the climate required for best growth. As far as temperature is concerned plants fall into the two general groups of cool season and warm season crops. According to studies, cool season crops need a temperature of at least 40 degrees for growth but often are adversely affected by an average daily temperature above 70 degrees. Generally they can take a frost but often are injured at temperatures below 28 degrees.

Warm season crops, on the other hand, need a temperature of at least 56 degrees for adequate growth and thrive during warm summer weather.

In Illinois, the northern part is more suited to cool weather crops than the southern counties. If 28 degrees average minimum temperature is classed as winter weather, northwestern Illinois has nearly four months of winter; the Peoria area, three and one-half months; East St. Louis, two months; and Cairo, none. Northern counties do not expect more than two months with average summer temperatures above 70 whereas East St. Louis expects 109 days and Cairo 114.

This is a logical reason for having green pea and sweet corn canneries in northern Illinois while cotton, peaches, or sweet potatoes may be important commercial crops in the south end of the state. Orchard pruning has been underway in southern Illinois for a few weeks. Trees are best pruned in the dormant state because this cuts down on wasting plant nutrients which may be utilized by fruits or buds before they are removed by thinning. Fruit is borne on wood one year old and annual dormant pruning has the effect of maintaining a good supply of wood that will bear fruit.

There are various schools of thought on pruning. There is a growing belief, substantiated by studies, that fruit trees may be pruned too heavily, especially during younger stages.

However, proper pruning does have an essential place in orcharding. It allows more sunlight to penetrate the center of the tree. This is essential to developing large, well-colored fruit. It also greatly aids in controlling disease and insects by getting rid of diseased-infected branches and permitting increased penetration of spray materials into the centers and tops of the trees.

Harvest Nurse Crops For Silage Rather Than Grain

URBANA—You can make the most of low-yielding cereal crops by harvesting them for silage rather than grain.

A. L. Neumann, beef cattle specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, says two years' research at the University shows that you can get three to five times as much in return in feeding value if you turn oats and other nurse crops into silage for feeding wintering beef cattle instead of selling the grain.

The approximately 12 percent protein content in oat silage is sufficient to maintain dry or nursing cows over the winter if you feed a little green, leafy legume hay and free-choice minerals.

Tests show that oat silage goes a long way toward providing protein needs of feeder cattle, too. Peculiar problems go along with the harvesting of cereal crops for silage, and Neumann has some tips to offer on how to overcome these difficulties.

The hollow stems of cereal crops resist packing, so chop oats in short lengths and let the silage settle awhile before packing.

Higher moisture content in the leaves than in the stems presents a drying problem. Usually the best time to harvest, according to Neumann, is when the oat grains are in the doughy stage. Staggering seeding dates or seeding varieties of different maturity dates will also help.

Irrigation Aids Vegetable Yields In SIU Testing

Supplementary irrigation increased vegetable production two to three times in Southern Illinois University tests during 1953 and 1954, William T. Andrew, SIU vegetable specialist, reports.

Only half as much rain fell during the months May to September in 1953 as in 1954, so differences were more pronounced in 1953 than in the past season, Andrew says. During the first year, water was applied when the plots looked dry; the soil was soaked to a depth of five inches. Last summer a moisture meter was used and plots were irrigated when the moisture level was 50 percent of field capacity. Andrew found:

Irrigated tomato plots in 1953 produced 318 pounds as compared to 108 pounds on unirrigated check plots. Fruit on irrigated plants averaged four-tenths of an ounce heavier. In 1954 the irrigated plots averaged 65 pounds, the unirrigated plots, 34. The average weight of fruit increased one ounce.

Cucumber yields in 1953 increased from 54 pounds on unirrigated plots to 150 pounds on those receiving added water. Sweet corn yields jumped from 42 ears to 109. Ear lengths were one-half inch greater on corn receiving supplementary irrigation. Neither was used in irrigation tests last summer.

Green peppers were included in 1954 tests. Yields went up from seven pounds to 18 pounds per plot by irrigating. A fall crop of green beans on irrigated plots yielded 22.1 pounds as compared to 2.3 pounds on check plots. Because the soil was moist the stand of plants was much better on irrigated plots after planting in August, Andrew points out.

More Lice and Mange On Hogs in Winter

URBANA — Look for lice or your hogs, suggests Dr. C. C. Morrill of the College of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Illinois.

Colder weather of the last few weeks has encouraged hogs to crowd together to keep warm. Crowding helps both lice and mange mites to spread from one pig to another, Dr. Morrill says.

Hogs with either of these parasites will eat more feed for each pound of gain, and their gains will be slower. You stand to lose either way.

Control of lice and mange is neither difficult nor expensive, according to Dr. Morrill. If the weather is warm, spray the animals thoroughly with lindane.

In cold weather you can use a lindane dust if you are careful to do a thorough job. Lice are commonly found on the belly, flanks and inside the thigh, where they may be missed by a careless job of dusting.

Silo is Insurance Against Soil Loss

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UP)—A Kansas State College agronomist says silos are one of the best devices to prevent soil-blowing in the plains area.

Frank Bieberly, the expert, explained:

If farmers have good feed supplies, they are not forced to overgraze the vegetative cover that protects their soil from blowing.

The Kansas agricultural experiment station reports that ensilage will keep indefinitely and still be nutritious and palatable to livestock.

The information is important now because of the ravages of drought in the nation's "breadbasket." Kansas and some nearby states had the driest November in recorded weather history — and this after two years of intermittent drought.

Bieberly believes that soil-blowing will be greatly reduced when all Midwest farmers learn how well ensilage will keep and start storing feed from the good years to be used during slim crop years.

Dr. Roy W. Harrell, Former Norris City Physician, Dies

Dr. Roy W. Harrell, 63, who for many years was a practicing physician in Norris City, died at his home in St. Louis, Mo., Thursday at 9 p. m.

Mr. Harrell was also a member of the medical staff at the Veterans hospital in Marion.

The body is now at the Kittinger funeral home in Carmi where the funeral will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. Rev. C. E. Hedges of Norris City will officiate, and burial will be in the Ebenezer cemetery.

Gilbert Church Rites Sunday

Funeral services for Gilbert Church, Carmi resident who died suddenly yesterday morning while helping lay an oil line in Eldorado, will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Brush Arbor church east of McLeansboro. Rev. Ralph Upton will officiate, and burial will be in the Odd Fellows cemetery at McLeansboro.

Build Up Over-all Soil Fertility for Best Results

CHICAGO—Farmers who depend entirely on row fertilization to feed their crops in a given year are trying to outguess the weather, reports the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee in citing a recent statement by H. P. Mederski, Ohio State University agronomist.

Mederski says that the best method is to build up the soil's overall fertility level and not put all the emphasis on row fertilization.

This pays in two ways, he says: 1—A farmer can get set for the good years when all other factors than soil fertility are just right to give top yields; 2—high soil fertility gives more profitable response in years of short moisture or other adverse conditions.

Building soil fertility does not mean cutting down on the amount of fertilizer a farmer uses, according to Mederski. It merely means shifting the emphasis on fertilizer application from the job of putting it in the row to the more convenient use on sod crops, broad-casting and plowing down and other suitable places in the sequence of crops.

More fertilizer is used in the summer and fall and less may be used at seeding time in the spring. This may mean cutting row fertilization down to about 150 pounds per acre, and increasing the amount of plant food that goes to build up the general fertility level. In this way, farmers can help eliminate fertility as a limiting factor in crop production.

Farmers probably will keep on using row fertilizers, but Mederski figures that more of the crop yield will come from building our over-all fertility levels higher and higher, and less will come from row fertilization.

Pig Brooders Prevent Chilling And Save Lives

If you're expecting your sows to farrow before warm weather, you'll be wise to invest in a pig brooder, says R. M. Peart, agricultural engineer at the University of Illinois.

Peart says a 250-watt lamp with reflector unit not only prevents chilling, but also lessens the danger that the sow will crush her young if the brooder is placed above a protective barrier. You can buy either a soft glass white lamp for about a dollar or a hard glass red Pyrex lamp for about $2.50. There is no difference in heat from the two.

One company has a new brooder-type lamp that is said to distribute heat more evenly.

A metal reflector unit is an invaluable companion to the lamp. The reflector protects the lamp from breakage and may prevent a disastrous fire. A hoop on the bottom prevents a hot lamp from igniting straw if the unit should fall.

Besides the hoop, a good reflector should have a porcelain socket, heavy-duty cord and hanger.

Mount the brooder 18 inches above the pigs if you have it in a corner away from the sow. Make sure it's out of the sow's reach if it's in the middle of the stall or house, Peart advises.

If your sows farrow in portable houses, be careful to use safe electrical wiring.

Have brooders ready before farrowing time. Use them 7 to 10 days. Accustom little pigs to doing without heat before turning them outside.

If you'd like more complete information on brooders, Peart says you can get a free leaflet, "Safe Heat-Lamp Brooding," from the Department of Agricultural Engineering, Urbana.

3,200,575 in Armed Services

WASHINGTON (UP)—The size of the armed services jumped to 3,200,575 in January as the result of an enlistment boom touched off by President Eisenhower's order to end GI wartime benefits.

The new total represented a rise of 19,978 over the previous month. Defense Department officials said the combined military forces took in 116,102 men in January, including 68,103 volunteers, 23,898 draftees and 24,101 reenlistments.

Burglars Enter Eldorado Legion

Deputy Sheriffs Everett N. Sneed and James S. Lyon investigated the burglary this morning. They reported that a door leading into the elevator had been left unbolts and an entrance was made through it into the building.

LITTLE LIZ

It's going to take more than a dress designer to give some women that flat look.

THE STORY: Johnny Fletcher and Sam Cragg are flat broke when a bill collector calls. Although they have no money Johnny bets he can collect any bad debt the collector, J. J. Kilkenny, has on his list. The one selected is a tab on Alice Cummings, who bought a cheap fur coat and skipped. Her last address was the Chesterton Hotel.

III
The doorman stood outside the hotel, sneaking a quiet smoke. He would take a quick puff or two, then palm the cigarette as he held it behind his back.

Johnny stepped up to him. "Mister," he said, "I've come to New York from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., to find my sister who ran away from home five years ago, come Candlemas Day."

"I'll bet," said the doorman. "Her name," Johnny went on, "was Alice Cummings and this was the last address we had of her."

"Alice Cummings," mused the doorman. "Yeah, sure, I remember her. A good-looking babe—"

"Naturally." "Oh, I remember her, all right. She had a little hard luck, I hear, and couldn't pay her room rent."

"She was wearing a real mink the last time I saw her," retorted the doorman.

"When was that?" "I see this babe three-four times a year. Doin' all right, too, I guess. She was with young Carmichael six-eight months ago. Come out of the theater there and it was rainin' so cabs was scarce and they came over here to grab one. I helped her in."

"Carmichael," said Johnny, "that wouldn't be Billy Carmichael, would it?"

"Naw. Young Jess—you know, son of old Jess Carmichael who made a potful in the grocery business."

"If I had a buck, which I have not," retorted Johnny, "I'd invest it in the Carmichael Grocery Stores."

Johnny signaled to Sam and they walked toward Seventh Avenue. "I'm glad to know the kid ain't starvin'," Sam said. "Wouldn't it be swell if she'd marry a fellow like this rich Mr. Carmichael?"

"It would help to distribute the wealth," said Johnny, "but it seems to me I've seen this Carmichael lad's name in the gossip columns. He gets around."

They walked to Fifth Avenue and turned south. A few minutes later they entered the grimy building that had housed the Harover Club since the turn of the century.

Inside, an assistant doorman who kept the record of the club members who were in the building at the time faced them. "Yes, gentlemen?"

"Mr. Jess Carmichael. He's expecting us."

"Your names?" "Fletcher and Cragg. But it's all right, we're having lunch with him. We'll look for him in the dining room."

"Sorry, sir, but it's against the club rules. Mr. Carmichael will have to pass you. I'll have him paged for you." He scribbled on a pad, banged a bell and called out, "Front!"

The bellboy went off and was gone a good five minutes, while Johnny and Sam waited in front of the assistant doorman's desk. Finally, the boy came back, accompanied by a red-faced, dissipated-looking man of about 30. The bellboy indicated Johnny and Sam, and Jess Carmichael regarded them vaguely.

"Do I know you chaps?" "Not yet," said Johnny. "My name's Fletcher and this is my partner, Sam Cragg."

Carmichael nodded briefly. "If you're selling insurance—"

Farm Purchasing Power Strong, Loan Expert Says

CHICAGO (UP)—A farm loan expert said today the American farmer has more purchasing power than at any time prior to World War II—and can be kept prosperous.

L. B. Foreman said farm prosperity will continue "if we maintain a prosperous economy, relatively high business activity, a high level of employment and an expanding economy."

Foreman, supervisor of farm loans of the Business Men's Assurance Co. of Kansas City, Mo., addressed the Farm Mortgage Clinic of the Mortgage Bankers Assn.

Another speaker told the group that 70 per cent of the farms in the United States are debt-free. Dr. E. C. Johnson, assistant deputy director of the Farm Credit Association's land bank service, added that the debts on the farms that are mortgaged "generally are not excessive and can be carried from anticipated earnings."

The total farm mortgage debt is low—only 9 per cent of the present value of farm real estate, he said.

When cane seats on chairs begin to sag, sponge them with hot water to which salt has been added. This takes up the slack.

"We're not," said Johnny. "In fact, we're not selling a thing. I came to see you for one reason only. To tell you how grateful I am."

"For what?" asked Carmichael, still suspicious. "My sister. You've been awfully good to her."

Carmichael winced. "Fletcher, you said? Uh, I, ah, don't believe I know—"

"Oh, she doesn't use our name any more. When she ran away from home she changed it." Johnny paused for effect. "To Alice Cummings."

"I've got nothing against blackmail," Johnny said. "I'll make a deal with you. A better deal than you deserve. I'll let you go your crummy way, on just one little condition. Alice's address. Right now—fast."

"That's all you want? You're sure?"

"That's all. Nothing more. Absolutely."

"Chateau Pelham—Fifth Avenue."

"Mr. Carmichael," Johnny said, "you're a scholar and a gentleman. I thank you."

Outside, Sam Cragg let out a roar. "Holy smoke, Johnny. That was raw!"

"I didn't do a thing. I didn't say anything I couldn't repeat in a court. He read a different meaning into everything. That's what a guilty conscience does to a man."

If elected to the city council of Harrisburg, I will propose and work for the hard surfacing of every street within the corporate limits.

Much smaller towns, namely Shawneetown and Carmi, are surfacing all their streets with money from a bond issue and retired from motor fuel tax funds, thereby there is not one cent of additional tax against your property.

I will appreciate your vote Tuesday.

As to the origin of the radioactivity, the paper makes the observation that the New Albany shale or Chattanooga shale which surrounds the dome "is well-known as the carrier of persistent weak sedimentary concentrations of uranium, and it seems natural to suggest a possible relation between the radioactivity in the hole and the shale which has been barely removed by erosion from the immediate surface above the hole."

In conclusion the paper suggests that there might be some relation or significance between the amount of fluoride mineralization and the amount of radioactivity—the more fluoride, the more radioactivity. It says that fluorapatite mineralization of varying quantities were evident in virtually every sample taken from the hole.

Administration Expects Senate To Kill Tax Cut

Leaders Predict
Democrats Will Support Opposition

By United Press
Administration leaders predicted today they will pick up enough Democratic support in the Senate to kill the House-approved $20 per person cut in income taxes.

The tax reduction may suffer its first setback in the Senate Finance Committee where both Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) and the ranking GOP member Sen. Eugene D. Millikin (R-Colo.) oppose it. But since it can be proposed from the floor as an amendment to the administration bill to extend corporation and excise taxes, the full Senate still will get a chance to act on the income tax slash.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said chances are "reasonably good" of defeating the reduction. The Senate Democratic leadership has not yet indicated whether it will press as strongly for the bill as did House leaders.

In an almost straight Democratic-versus-Republican vote, the House approved the tax cut 210 to 205. The debate was heated and partisan with Republicans accusing Democrats of trying to "buy votes" for 1956 with the tax bill.

President Eisenhower, who has said the Treasury cannot stand the loss of some 2 billion dollars annually in income taxes expressed great disappointment at House approval of the tax cut. But he pinned his hope on the Senate.

"I know there are some Democrats in the Senate who don't want any part of it," he said.

Pay: The Senate rejected 62-7 a compromise bill to give congressmen a $7,500-a-year pay raise, a $1,250 tax-free expense allowance and five extra free round trips home. Senate objections were raised to the expense allowance feature.

The compromise bill, already approved by the House, now goes back to a House-Senate conference committee.

Housing: The Senate passed and sent to the House a bill authorizing the Federal Housing Administration to insure an additional 1-1/2 billion dollars in home mortgages. The increase is to tide the agency over until July 1.

Harlan: The Senate Judiciary Committee has ended its hearings on the nomination of Judge John Marshall Harlan of New York to the Supreme Court, but will not vote on the nomination before Tuesday.

The Sketch said the House of Commons will be told next week of Britain's progress toward the H-bomb, which was first disclosed weeks before last.

It said the "heavy guard that will be put around the Antarctic site will recall the recent disputes with Argentina and Chile over the British Falkland Islands."

U. S. to Return Seven Fishermen To Chinese Reds

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States plans to return seven Chinese in what is considered a bid China in what is considered a bid for Chinese release of 15 imprisoned American seamen.

The United States relayed word of its decision to U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, who has been negotiating with Red Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai for release of the Americans.

Hammarskjöld was said to hope the move will soften Red China's previous refusal to release the seamen.

The fishermen were rescued from a foundering boat by the Air Force in the South China Sea last May. They were taken to the Philippines where they have been ever since.

State Department officials said the move to return the fishermen was being taken for purely "humanitarian reasons." But other sources said the move was made with the specific purpose of having Hammarskjöld take the matter up with the Red Chinese.

Gunman Seized In Battle After Two Men Killed

APPOMATTOX, Va. (UP)—Police fired five bullets into a gunman during a raging gun battle in nearby Evergreen early today and took him alive after he had killed two men, including a doctor. The dead men were David Tucker of Evergreen, and Dr. Jack Tucker of Appomattox.

Robertson said Tucker was shot first at Mayberry's home where Tucker and his wife, Lillian, also resided. The shooting occurred after an argument.

The sheriff said Tucker's wife notified his office of the shooting and in the meantime called Dr. Christian to treat her wounded husband, not knowing he was dead. When Dr. Christian arrived at the Mayberry home, he was shot in the heart with a .38 caliber pistol, Robertson said.

Robertson arrived at the scene a few minutes later. The sheriff called for state police aid. When about 30 troopers arrived, the sheriff's men and the troopers fought it out with Mayberry.

Thank you, God, for my baby... and help me to be worthy of him. He is such a blessed little bit of humanity... so innocent... untouched by the many evils of the world.

There is so much to teach him, and You have chosen me to be his teacher. You have placed a soul in my clumsy hands, and I am humble before your gift.

How well I realize that in my wonderful task I need the help of the greatest Teacher... Your help. My constant prayer will be for guidance... so that I may teach my son what is right... so that I may set his tiny feet in the right direction on the path of life, and guide his dear little mind into the right channels.

And when the time comes, my son will go to Church... because the Church is Your home on earth, and there in Your presence all that I have tried to show him will have true meaning to him, and he will believe.

Sunday School Lesson

By Dr. Archie E. Brown
Pastor First Baptist Church
Vandalia, Ill.

'The Church and The Gospel'

Romans 10:8-15; I Cor. 2:1-5
GOLDEN TEXT: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." (Rom. 1:16)

INTRODUCTION: The church was ordained by Christ to preach the gospel. The gospel is the good news. Preaching this gospel is of utmost importance today. It is a tragedy to see the lack of real preaching in so many churches in this day and time. Modern methods have taken the place of preaching in all too many instances.

Let it be said here and now that Christ intended that His church be the agency for spreading the gospel. Mass meetings and evangelistic crusades outside our churches have their place, but they can never take the place of the church. Christ intended that the world be won through His church.

THE CHURCH'S MESSAGE—FAITH (Romans 10:14-15)
The church's message is the message of salvation. This is one of the very best portions of soul-winning scripture in all the Bible. Every Christian should know it from memory. The duty and privilege of every Christian is to win others to Christ. This passage of scripture can be used by anyone to lead another person to know Christ as Saviour.

The message is that faith in Christ brings about salvation from eternal hell to everlasting life to all who "call upon the name of the Lord." Every believer is told here that he should "confess with the mouth the Lord Jesus." Secret discipleship is not worth very much. Every Christian is to let it be known that he believes in Christ as his own personal Saviour.

THE MESSENGER (Romans 10:14-15)
People can be saved from sin only as they hear the gospel. Who is to preach the gospel? God's messengers. Who are they? They are the ones called to Christ for this purpose.

No person, who has never experienced salvation, can ever tell another how to be saved. Talk about "the blind leading the blind!" There you have a good example. No! My friend, only one who knows Christ by actual experience can tell others about Him. The preacher must know that God has "called" him and "sent" him to preach. God puts His hand upon some whom He wants for preachers. This does not mean that preachers alone are responsible for winning others to Christ. This is "every Christian's" job. Every child of God is to be a messenger for Christ.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
